WHEELING, OCTOBER 4, 1899.

Encouraging News.

The announcement in yesterday's morning papers from Senator Scott that the prospect that the Hobbs glass works will be revived as a result of a conference with President D. C. Ripley, of the United States Glass Company, which resulted in a promise of a definite conclusion before the end of the week, was good news to the workers in South Wheeling, which means more employment at good wages and increased prosperity for Wheeling in general.

The city will thoroughly appreciate the interest Senator Scott has taken in this matter, and the success he is meeting with. So far as the senator is concerned, his effort to revive this long dormant enterprise is entirely unselfish. His desire is to benefit the city and to provide increased employment for labor.

Wheeling's natural advantages are such that it is possible for it to become an important glass center. Its prestige as an iron and steel point is sufficient guarantee that it can sustain itself as a manufacturer of other products.

The success of the Central Glass Works, its steady employment of men, its field of trade, are sufficiently demonstrative that there is plenty of room for other similar enterprises. To Senator Scott is largely due the success of the Central, and with him at the head of the new proposition, there is no reason why the Hobbs works should not reach the same dimensions in all particulars. If the proper amount of encouragement is given by local capital, so that it may be, in fact and not in name only, a purely Wheeling industry.

Rank Political Demagoguery.

The Register has capped the climax in its exhibition of the art of acrobatic politics. On Monday morning the Register had a silly story that the administration had a project to have the President make a political tour of the west, notably Ohio, accompanied by Admiral Dewey, and paralleled it with the incident of Andrew Johnson making a similar trip with Secretaries Seward and Welles of the old Lincoln cabinet, and also by General Grant and Admiral Farragut. This was to be in the interest of McKinley's re-nomination. This the Register was positive was true.

The Register followed this statement up yesterday morning with an editorial, which actually gave the lie to the statement of the previous day, in which it repeats the absurd and ridiculous falsehood, naively by the admiral himself on board the Olympia on the day of his arrival, that it is possible Dewey will be the Democratic nominee for the presidency next year. It relates that Dewey, as a presidential candidate against the President who paid him the highest honor it is possible for an Executive to confer on a naval officer, "would sweep the country from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and not even Republican frauds would save the day for the Republican administration."

This, in the face of Admiral Dewey's indignant denial that he was concerned in any way whatever with politics; that he is a sailor and satisfied with the life position he now has conferred upon by the administration. We hope the Register can answer the following questions:

Does the Register know what Admiral Dewey's views are upon the theories laid down by the Chicago platform which have been endorsed by every Democratic state convention that has been held this year?

Does it know what money standard he favors?

Does it know what his position would be upon a platform that would denounce the national administration which has conferred upon him a rare honor for his magnificent achievements?

Can the Register state how it knows that the admiral would accept a Democratic nomination from an aggregation of Aguinaldians, Bryanites, Altgeldites, free traders, free silverites, and men who have circulated alleged views of which he has taken occasion to indignantly deny?

Does the Register know that Admiral Dewey would accept a nomination at the hands of men who are circulating literature calculated to weaken our efforts for the restoration of peace and order in the Philippines, and endangering the lives of our sailors and soldiers, repudiating our sacred treaty obligations, which he helped to bring about by an act of heroism?

Who informed the Register that he would consent to placing himself in so ignoble a position?

Has the Register a private tip from the Admiral that he would engage in such a despicable undertaking?

The native state of Admiral Dewey, which is so justly proud of him, is not a Democratic state. It never gave a Democratic majority. Does the Register know that, though the total vote of Vermont in 1896 was but 63,600, McKinley received 31,000 of them over the Bryan platform? Does the Register imagine for one moment that honest old Vermont would reverse that sentiment toward a Bryanite platform, even with Admiral Dewey as the candidate?

Would they repudiate principles to elect a Democratic President, even though the candidate is not a Democrat? Does the Register think Admiral Dewey is a fool to be against his own state, or a great American Patriot? Does the Register know that Admiral Dewey stated less than a week ago that nobody knows what his politics are?

A Draw Race.

If the people of England were preparing to hold a jubilee over a defeat of the Columbia they are badly disappointed this morning. The American yacht gave the Shamrock so close a race that the contest was declared a draw. The representatives of the two great powers that are so equally well matched in the race for the commerce of the world, came out even, and neither side has cause for claiming a victory, though both may boast of a record for speed. This is the first instance between England and America in which a race of any sort was a draw.

When the two greatest nations come together in a friendly contest, whether it be for trade or superior seamanship, it is something worth seeing. They are so nearly matched in skill and general interests, that the race is necessarily exciting to the rest of the world. Twice in the history of the past century and a quarter the Star Spangled Banner has floated over the British flag as a result of war, in both events a weak power triumphant over one far superior in strength. Consequently, we may well claim that the tally is decidedly on the side of Columbia.

England must win a great many yacht races before she can even up on the total score. And then there will be a race more in the nature of business, for already the United States is far in advance of her competitor in foreign commerce, and will maintain the lead of speed for years to come. There is consolation in that, for commercial victories are far greater than yacht victories in importance.

Kindly Word to a Contemporary.

When our friend and esteemed contemporary the Parkersburg Journal cannot see a joke it is truly sad. Referring to a Washington dispatch which stated the First district is entitled to a governor and an auditor, the Journal says: "Why stop so soon? Why not take the entire ticket from Ohio county?"

Editor Morris likes a good thing occasionally and is noted for looking on the humorous side of things. He ought to appreciate the same propensity in a contemporary. Ohio county doesn't want the earth, but Ohio county, under the management of a candidate for auditor, changed a regular Democratic majority from 390 to 500 to a continuous Republican majority of from 1,200 to 1,800. Can Wood county show up a record like that?

The Intelligencer showed its good will for the Fourth district, the other day, when it said that it could not afford to spare Congressman Freer in his present position in order to make a governor out of him at a meagre salary, with the responsibilities of the burdens of patronage. Is Ohio county to be thus repaid by an organ of Representative Freer's district?

The New York Sun notes the other side. It declares that, while the thrill and glow of the splendid spectacle were still on the people, and the town was yet wrapped in the colors of Americanism, one man was heard to say: "Dewey is d—d. Dewey won't buy me any coal or any flour this winter—not a barrelful." Thus, says the Sun, in the midst of a celebration of a hero and a flag, the voice of truth, practical-minded Bryan anti-expansionist raised itself and made itself heard. Omitting, for reasons of expediency only, the Dewey and the d—s, substantially the same sentiment will appear in various Democratic platforms from this time on.

There is a multi-millionaire iron-maker in this country, who, if he keeps on at his present rate, may one day own the earth. He has had a remarkable career of success. This man is Archer Brown. He began life away back in 1872 as a newspaper reporter on the Cincinnati Gazette, saved $8,900 from his wages, and, with that amount of capital, laid the foundation of his present fortune. To be a millionaire under some circumstances isn't anything. A man who in a few years saves $8,900 from a newspaper reporter's wages performs a feat that is rare in history. As remarked, he might keep on until he owned the earth, but probably, through pure selfishness, concluded to stop where he is.

A tariff object lesson is afforded by the statement that in the last year of the Wilson law the importations of wool were 350,852,026 pounds, valued at $53,243,151, and American flocks were depleted. Last year the importations, under the present tariff, were only 76,736,209 pounds, valued at $8,322,857. The change that has come over the home values of sheep is instructive to American farmers as to the wisdom of the tariff on wool. It will be recalled that the war cry of the free traders was free wool, and that feature of protection was made a national issue.

The Washington Post wants to know if the New York World will be kind enough to explain why it would cut Admiral Dewey off with one term in this white house.

Admiral Sampson will make a speech at Morgantown on the occasion of the presentation of the sword to Captain Chadwick, which is regarded as an appropriate feature of the event.

Complimentary to Both.

The West Virginia Bar: Judge Thayer Melvin was selected by the bar of the first circuit to succeed Judge

Paul, with a unanimity that was both complimentary to him and to the good judgment of the members of that circuit. Governor Atkinson ratified their choice with an alacrity that showed his hearty acquiescence. The committee which conveyed to the governor the recommendation of the bar brought back with them Judge Melvin's commission and he at once donned the judicial ermine and took up the work where Judge Paul had laid it down, without further formality.

The bar of that circuit has thus happily alleviated the sad loss occasioned by the death of Judge Paul in a manner that will avoid any delay or detriment to the business of the circuit. Judge Melvin is a thoroughly equipped and experienced officer who does not need to learn the duties of his position and has already proved himself a most capable and popular judge. He is the very personification of a gentleman on the bench, with a judicial training and a capacity for work that insures the dispatch of business, and whose opinions will command the universal respect of the bar and the public.

It was a matter of general regret, when, a few years ago, Judge Melvin voluntarily retired from the bench. It will be a matter of general congratulation that he is in the harness again. It will doubtless require of him a considerable personal sacrifice, but will enable him to round out a life of distinguished public service bearing the gratitude and respect of his profession and the public.

THE VITASCOPE HERO.

How Col. Bryan Did Not Raise the Third Nebraska.

Nebraska State Journal: Mr. Bryan's boast at O'Neill that "I then raised a regiment of my own," implying that it was he who "raised" the Third regiment sounds funny here in Lincoln. The regiment was virtually "raised" and offered to the governor by boys, many of them from the well-drilled ranks of the university cadets, before Mr. Bryan had concluded to be a colonel, and the governor was requested to appoint Captain Dudley of the United States army, who was a former instructor of military science and tactics in the university.

At a banquet given Captain Dudley about this time, at which both the governor and Mr. Bryan were present, the offer was virtually accepted, and the governor promised that if further troops were called for from this state to appoint Captain Dudley to the command of the next regiment.

When the Third regiment was called for the boys were running over each other to enlist. Then it occurred to the governor and Mr. Bryan that it was good politics to have Bryan for colonel. To that end a meeting was called of the Lincoln Bi-metallic Marching League to organize into a company. A few of them gave in their names, but could not muster enough to make even a majority of the company, and boys outside came tumbling in with requests for the privilege of signing the roll.

Great care was taken to keep the roll politically right for Bryan. It having been determined that he should be elected captain of that company, and after that held a commission from the university signed by the governor of Nebraska as a reserve officer of the National Guard.

But it was made so unpleasant for this young man who had been foremost in the enterprise of organizing Dudley's promised regiment, by the governor and High Senate Bryan that he resigned. Mr. Bryan was then announced as having been promoted from the ranks by the governor, and the great historical picture of "Colonel Bryan receiving his commission from the governor" was vitascope long before the regiment was sufficiently organized to allow the commissioning of a colonel, and consequently long in advance of the actual issue of his commission.

Dewey Celebration.

Americans are quick to appreciate merit. The Dewey celebrations prove that, and it is again forcibly demonstrated in the praise and confidence which is accorded to Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, one of the most meritorious remedies ever compounded for indigestion, constipation, dyspepsia, biliousness, liver or kidney disease or any trouble arising from a weak stomach. If you have a weak stomach don't fail to try it.

The topaz is said to be a preventive to lung trouble, imparts strength and promotes digestion.

A rich man died the other day. He died in the very midst of life, and he left his family $1,000,000.

by neglect of symptoms which have been warning him a year past, that his stomach was failing in its duties.

The symptoms of a disordered condition of the stomach and the organs of digestion and nutrition are, among others, variable appetite, sour risings, heartburn, undue fullness after eating, dull headache, dingy complexion, discolored eye, fluctuations in physical strength, nervousness, sleeplessness, depression. No one person will have all these symptoms at once, but any one of them calls for prompt aid for the suffering stomach.

The restoration of the stomach, digestive and nutritive organs to a condition of sound health, begins with the first dose of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. The cure progresses from that dose until the functions of the stomach and its related organs are in healthy operation. Then the nerves are quiet, the appetite healthful, the sleep restful, the eye bright, the complexion clear. In one word the body is in a condition of perfect health.

"I was troubled with indigestion about two years," writes Wm. Bowler, Esq., of Julietta, LaSalle Co., Idaho. "I tried different doctors and remedies but to no avail, until I wrote to you and you told me what to do. I suffered with a pain in my stomach and left side, and thought that it would kill me. Now I am glad to write this and let you know that I am all right. I can do my work now without pain and I don't have that dread feeling that I used to have. Five bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and two vials of his 'Pleasant Pellets' cured me."

Don't let the dealer sell you a substitute, if you want a cure. Insist on having "Golden Medical Discovery."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets surpass all complexion powders. They make the skin healthy and the complexion clear.

A NICKEL A DAY.

What Would Happen if Everybody Spent that Much More.

Chicago Times-Herald: A nickel a day spent by every man, woman and child in the United States makes the whole face of the nation expand into a smile of prosperity more than a billion dollars a year abroad. In the sunshine of that smile the American people to-day are beginning to bask for the first time in more than five years.

It is not a nickel saved, but the nickel spent that makes prosperity. If this nation were to start in at this moment to save or hoard its nickels it would not be a week before returning prosperity would shut up like a clam at high water and wait for the lowest ebb of the purse strings which were strangling it.

What potentialities for national prosperity abide in the humble nickel. How insignificant itself! Multiplied by the population of the United States—76,285,000, according to the treasury estimate August 1, 1899—it swells to the enviable sum of $3,442,500 for a single day per capita. Month by month the nickel a day spent by the population of the United States will amount to $1,392,301,250. What mountains of misery such a sum can remove in a year!

This is all very beautiful, sneers your chronic pessimist and birds of discontent, but where is the nickel a day per capita to come from? More than one-half of the population are minors. One-half of the adults are women. Where is the nickel to come from for every one to spend?

There is no trouble about the nickel a day per head, man, woman and baby. It is already here. Within a day per capita the wages of all classes of labor have advanced from 5 to 30 per cent. This means a general raise of over 25 cents per wage earner. In the case of day laborers wages have gone up from $1.25 a day, with no demand for labor, to $1.75 and $2 per day, with the demand practically unlimited.

This means that throughout the republic the wages earned per day are from 50 to 75 cents a day greater per family than they were two years ago.

According to the census of 1890 the ratio of families to population was 1 per 4.93 inhabitants. With five persons in a family an increase of 50 cents a day in earnings would provide each one with a nickel to save and a nickel to spend.

Think of it! A billion and a third to put in the stocking, and a billion and a third to add to the common stock of prosperity.

Wealth may come from that nickel saved, but the prosperity which is evident on every hand, which jostles one in the streets, crowds the stores and keeps the whole country "humming" to catch on, is directly traceable to the nickel a day that is spent.

The humble nickel is the symbol and herald of good times. The people who have learned how to save, and how to spend it have solved the problem of living contented, happy and prosperous.

Let the reader think for himself what $1,392,250 in nickels will buy, and how it will keep the wheels buzzing.
